

JUSTICE FOR THE INJURED

Attorney Scott D. Grossman may be the new guy in town, but by no means is he green under the collar when it comes to representing clients who have been involved in accidents resulting in serious personal injuries. Two years ago, The Law Offices of Scott D. Grossman, LLC, opened its doors in downtown Freehold, and ever since, he has been serving the people of the local area with respectful, compassionate, and zealous legal representation in matters involving all types of personal injuries, including automobile accidents, dog bites, and trip and falls. Mr. Grossman brings to the community years of firm experience - passionately representing clients and always bringing a human touch to the way he practices law.

"When someone gets hurt after an accident, he or she is often scared, confused, and angry. The focus for the injured person should be on recuperating and regaining control over his or her life. My role is simply to handle the complexities of litigation, dealing with the insurance companies, etc., so that my client's recovery can be an easier process," Grossman says.

Attorney Grossman was drawn to the practice of law after studying Criminal Justice as an undergrad, getting a Master's Degree in Political Science and working as a probation officer for the State of New Jersey. As a probation officer, he worked one on one with people to try to help them stay on the right side of the law. Sometimes he was successful, and his reward would be learning that a former probationer successfully completed the program, went back to school and made something of himself. Helping people, Grossman decided, was something that gave him immense satisfaction, which prompted him to go to law school.

"Helping people is one of the best ways I know how to give to a community. I have a service to offer that can benefit those who need it. I am good at what I do, I believe in what I do, and most of all, I enjoy it. When clients call me after a case is over to tell me how much they appreciated all of my efforts and that they will recommend my services to others, well, that's how I know I have done a good job."

According to Grossman, over recent years, the insurance environment has changed drastically, making it more difficult for people to navigate through the bureaucracy that it has become. "One of the more challenging aspects of what I do is negotiating with insurance companies whose sole job is to deny my clients the treatment they need in order to recover. But my approach is to deal with the insurance adjusters on a human level, to educate them that this is not simply about numbers and bottom lines, but rather about people who are hurt and need medical attention and protection of their futures. I'm usually quite successful with this approach."
